“Old School” theme results in great parade entries.

The Arnold Community Fall Festival came back strong last weekend, as a good crowd turned out for the two days of events. The highlight had to be the parade on Saturday morning that had a great new route that traveled from the Methodist Church and around the city park. Over 35 businesses, organizations, and other entrants really out-did themselves, with many designing their float/entry around the theme of “Old School.” Out of town entrants even joined in the parade.

With Tim Rosentrater announcing, members of the American Legion and V.F.W. presented the colors while Danah Baldwin sang “The National Anthem.” Following behind were Grand Marshals Bobbie Smith and Doris Lynch Bowers – Arnold’s oldest man and woman. Bobbie will turn 98 this week and Doris will turn 102 next month. Also appearing were 2021 Homecoming royalty Colbi Smith and Faith Bierman. The prize of Best Decorated Float went to Grazers Bar &

Grill. With the original Jim’s Bar sign on the back of the float, a group of friends sat around the famous “red table” with drinks, while co-owner Annie Vettel channeled her inner Margaret Eastburn behind the counter. “We figured the most appropriate representation of “Old School” that Grazers could portray was Jim’s Bar,” said Annie. The Best Old School Themed Float prize went to Nansel’s Best Service. With 55 continuous years of business service to Arnold, the four-generation business has been Mobil, Conoco, and Sinclair throughout the years. The float featured the Sinclair sign and one of the original gas pumps. After the parade, the line was long for the barbecue, prepared by Casey Cozad and Nicole Christine. Another line that was constant from morning until the end of the day was at the towering rock wall set up at the park. The bouncy house located nearby was also in constant motion and everyone was enjoying some mini golf. An adult amateur cornhole tournament started Saturday morning, paused for the parade, and then continued. Kids enjoyed several games organized by the National Honor Society and Jr. High Honor Society students. And then everyone was off to watch the golf cart races, where the driver was blind folded, and fun competitions at the Red Neck Olympics. The weekend kicked off Friday after the South Loup vs. Stapleton football game, where some 15 vendors sat up and teams signed up for the Bucket Brigade Challenge. Beautiful weather both days helped the organizers and everyone involved pull off a great return of the fall festival.

School Board Approves Budget, Tax Request

The Arnold School Board approved a budget of $3,345,719.00 for the 2021-2022 school year at their regular meeting held on September 13. Budgeted for the General Fund was $2,879,250.00 and $407,621.00 was budgeted for the Special Building Fund. The tax asking, which was also approved, is down from 76.6 last year to 75.9 this year. Superintendent Joel Morgan said property valuations went up 3 percent from last year, which affects the tax request. The asking is up $59,046.00, but the levy is down. The operating budget will see an increase of 16 percent. “It seems like a large increase in the operating budget, but that increase is also based on what we have gained in assets, such as an increased balance in the special building fund. Our spending has not gone up 16 percent” he said. At the hearing, no one spoke to the budget before it was approved. Mr. Morgan gave a COVID-19 update, informing the board that the Governor doesn’t have any Directed Health Measures in place, so there are currently no changes. “We’re fortunate that we’re starting the school year on a good note,” he said.

Cut-out at library recognizes past and present librarians

The likeness of Norene Mills, former librarian and author of “One Hundred Years on the South Loup” will now grace the southwest corner of Finch Memorial Library. The painted wooden figure was created by Marah Sandoz, who has made over 100 cutouts for the small town of Taylor, Nebraska, as a way to draw tourists.

The idea of placing a cutout to represent librarians who have served over the years came from Library Director Marcy Lucas and Board Member Carlene Lanham in general discussion. Carlene said Norene was a logical choice, not only because she was a former librarian, but also because on a personal level, she documented the town’s history from 1883-1993 through her book. From there, work began on sending everything needed to Marah to create the cut-out. Norene’s daughter, Suanne Lind, sent a photo of Norene, and Marcy and Carlene made a copy of the cover of Norene’s book. Marah then researched what outfit Norene might have worn during the time period that she served as library director and presented examples. Norene served as a librarian for 16 years, from the late 60s, all through the 70s, and into the early 80s. She resigned when her husband became ill. Board members said the likeness of Norene is remarkable, as is the outfit and the book.
